Before we read

We're going to read about the three best countries to retire in 2026. The list is based on the ranking made by International Living. The countries in the ranking are from all around the world. What do you think are the best countries or cities to retire in? Share your ideas!

The Best Places to Retire in the World

Every year, the International Living ranking presents a list of the best places in the world to retire. To create this ranking, experts take into account many detailed factors, such as cost of living, healthcare quality, climate, safety, infrastructure, and overall quality of life. They also analyse how easy it is for foreigners to settle, the level of bureaucracy, and opportunities for an active social life.

In the latest ranking, Greece takes first place. Greece attracts retirees with its warm Mediterranean climate, affordable living costs compared to many Western countries, and reliable public healthcare. The slower pace of life, strong local communities, and rich history also play a key role. Many retirees choose coastal towns or islands, where they can enjoy fresh food, outdoor activities, and a balanced lifestyle.

Second place belongs to Panama, which is especially popular thanks to its famous Pensionado Program. This program offers retired foreigners generous financial benefits and discounts, including reduced prices for transport, medical services, and entertainment. Panama also offers political stability, modern cities, and a lower cost of living than in many European or North American countries.

The third country on the list is Costa Rica. It is known for its strong focus on environmental protection, political stability, and high-quality healthcare. Many retirees are drawn to Costa Rica's natural beauty, relaxed lifestyle, and reputation as one of the happiest countries in the world.

Although these three countries lead the ranking, the ideal retirement destination always depends on personal needs, health, finances, and lifestyle preferences.
